

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) EXPRESS

Circ.: m. 73,255
S. 133,616

Front Edit Other
Page Page Page 55

Date:

Collegians Hear Of CIA Duty

Working for Uncle Sam in foreign lands as part of his Central Intelligence Agency is fundamentally "plain old work," the CIA deputy commander said here Saturday.

Lt. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, a native of Dallas, told members of the Texas Interscholastic Assn. at the Gunter Hotel that because of that hard work the U.S. has an intelligence system better than or the equal of any ever devised.

He invited bright young collegians, with a strong sense of devotion to their country, to consider intelligence or other branches of the service in their choice of careers.

Live In Anonymity

"My part of that system — the Central Intelligence Agency — to my knowledge, is manned by people of high purpose and of great education," Gen. Cabell said. "They live in an atmosphere of anonymity and, unlike the captains of industry and military heroes, they are denied the testimonial banquets, the medals of honor and the public recognition by their fellow citizens that they have done a good job."

"They are much like the diplomats in this respect. Only the select few in the high places of government know of the intelligence coups and the diplomatic triumphs, for if they were to boast of either, these gains would be lost at once and forever."

"Such people must look to the inner satisfactions of the knowledge that they are serving their country."

He said there has never been a greater need for "clear-thinking and competent intelligence officers in every facet of our activity." He said the day is past when the U.S. could rely on the excellent British intelligence system "and not have to stoop . . . to the lowly business of snooping into other people's affairs."

He emphasized he looked on intelligence today as "an honored profession worthy of the career decision of the highest type of person."

Gen. Cabell's speech concluded the seventh annual TISA convention held at Trinity University.

Earlier Saturday delegates elected Walter Wink, Southern Methodist junior from Dallas, as president. He heads the state organization of 37 colleges and universities representing nearly 100,000 Texas students.

Leon Ginsberg, Trinity sophomore from San Antonio, was elected vice-president.

Other Officers

Other officers included: Secretary — Madalin Meyers of Houston; University of Houston; Treasurer — Gus Mijales of Shreveport, La., Texas A&M; parliamentarian — Lee Baxter of Houston, Texas Southern.

Lewis Israel of Rice Institute is outgoing president.

Among resolutions passed by the group was one favoring continuation of the educational benefits under the G.I. Bills of Rights. A recommendation was made to member schools to take appropriate study and action in the field of racial integration at the college level in the best interests of higher education.

SMU was designated as the state headquarters for a human relations commission to gather information on problems of integration.

Abilene Christian College's bid for next spring's convention site was accepted unanimously by the group.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) EXPRESS

Circ.: m. 73,255
S. 133,616

Front Edit Other
Page Page Page
APR 4 1955

Date:

Collegians Hear Of CIA Duty

Working for Uncle Sam in foreign lands as part of his Central Intelligence Agency is fundamentally "plain old work," the CIA deputy commander said here Saturday.

Lt. Gen. Charles P. Cabell, a native of Dallas, told members of the Texas Interscholastic Assn. at the Gunter Hotel that because of that hard work the U.S. has an intelligence system better than or the equal of any ever devised.

He invited bright young collegians, with a strong sense of devotion to their country, to consider intelligence or other branches of the service in their choice of careers.

Live In Anonymity

"My part of that system — the Central Intelligence Agency — to my knowledge, is manned by people of high purpose and of great education," Gen. Cabell said. "They live in an atmosphere of anonymity and, unlike the captains of industry and military heroes, they are denied the testimonial banquets, the medals of honor and the public recognition by their fellow citizens that they have done a good job.

"They are much like the diplomats in this respect. Only the select few in the high places of government know of the intelligence coups and the diplomatic triumphs, for if they were to boast of either, these gains would be lost at once and forever.

"Such people must look to the inner satisfactions of the knowledge that they are serving their country."

He said there has never been a greater need for "clear-thinking and competent intelligence officers in every facet of our activity." He said the day is past when the U.S. could rely on the excellent British intelligence system "and not have to stoop to the lowly business of snooping into other people's affairs." He emphasized he looked on intelligence today as "an honored profession worthy of the career decision of the highest type of person."

Gen. Cabell's speech concluded the seventh annual TISA convention held at Trinity University.

Earlier Saturday delegates elected Walter Wink, Southern Methodist junior from Dallas, as president. He heads the state organization of 37 colleges and universities representing nearly 100,000 Texas students.

Leon Ginsberg, Trinity sophomore from San Antonio, was elected vice-president.

Other Officers

Other officers included: Secretary — Madalin Meyers of Houston, University of Houston; Treasurer — Gus Mijales of Shreveport, La.; Texas A&M; parliamentarian — Lee Baxter of Houston, Texas Southern.

Lewis Israel of Rice Institute is outgoing president.

Among resolutions passed by the group was one favoring continuation of the educational benefits under the G.I. Bills of Rights. A recommendation was made to member schools to take appropriate study and action in the field of racial integration at the college level in the best interests of higher education.

SMU was designated as the state headquarters for a human relations commission to gather information on problems of integration.

Abilene Christian College's bid for next spring's convention site was accepted unanimously by the group.